Course Objectives

This postgraduate course focuses on solid tumors and inflammatory conditions of the pancreas, bile duct and ampulla. Sixty cases (both histological and cytological preparations) will be presented and discussed extensively using an interactive approach with "live" microscopic demonstration. Particular attention will be paid to diagnostic criteria, differential diagnoses and clinical relevance. The value and limitations of immunohistochemistry and of other ancillary methods will be critically discussed. A review and update on histo- and cytopathology will be provided. Several lectures will give an overview on classification of malignant tumors and diagnostic issues. The participants will have the opportunity to review 60 digitized cases (virtual microscopy) four weeks prior to and after the course.

Participants

This course is designed for practicing pathologist as well as senior pathology trainees. Attendance is limited to 100 participants.
